Flowers were very profuse about the building. After the exercises were through and the tickets of merit distributed Miss Raymond made a short address to the pupils who had graduated from her school and were going into a higher grade. She spoke in a very feeling manner of their associations, some of the scholars having been with her two years. She hoped to know that they would make as good progress in the future as when with her. That their lives might be without a blemish. Trusting that the vacation might be a pleasant one, and in saying good bye she wished they would never forget the pleasant hours spent together and that their paths might always be those of pleasantness and peace. The scholars replied with distinctive voices "the same to you."

HIGHER GRADES.

This afternoon the exercises of the Seventh, Eighth and Ninth grades commenced at half past one o'clock. The rooms in the upper portion of the building were handsomely decorated by the pupils under the direction of the teachers. ### Not a Success.

It is reported that financial reverses have come upon the Altrurian colony, which located a year ago on a tract of land near Santa Rosa. Many of the colonists went from Oakland and Berkeley. Mr. Gibson, one of their number, tells this story of the difficulty:

When work was commenced on the hotel a debt of $10,000 was incurred, which, according to agreement, was to be paid in yearly installments of $1000 with interest at 7 per cent due every six months. The first installment was paid but when the time for paying the second installment came around there was nothing to do it with. The colonists who had money were afraid to risk it and a good majority felt discouraged and left. A mortgage has been given for the second $1000 and E. A. Payne of Berkeley, the president of the Commonwealth, is standing good for the amount. He has paid the interest for the ensuing six months and so we are all right until more interest is due. If some of us who have the capital would work the coal mine, the debt would be insignificant beside the profit. There is a magnificent water power there besides and the soil is the best for raising vegetables in the State. The hotel, barring mishaps, was to have been finished by July, but no lumber, no hotel, is the way it looks at present.

They are Off

Tomorrow morning when the hands on the clocks point to three, and the cocks crow the third time, as we are informed in bible lore, Mr. J. Vasey will take the ribbons in hand and crack his whip over the heads of four graceful steeds, and the start will then be made by Dr. Gladding and wife, W. B. Taylor, the well known assayer, and family, and John Vasey and family for the Santa Cruz mountains where the party expects to arrive early in the afternoon, and where the sign "Camp West Berkeley" will for some time announce the fact that some of our best citizens and their families have left dull care behind and are enjoying life in the wilds of nature, in the mountains where the life-giving scent of the pines is breathed into the lungs, and sufficiently close to the coast to get the pure ozone that is wafted from the salt pillows of the old Pacific.

The party is supplied with four tents, three of which will be used for the individual families for sleeping apartments and the fourth will be used as a dining and sitting room for the whole party.

Provisions enough for a small army will be taken along, and the Berkeleyite that desires to take the train to Los Gatos on Saturday evening and then put in Sunday at the camp, returning on Monday in time for business, will find the most hospitable of hosts and the latch string on the outside.

Quite a unique range has been taken along for culinary purposes. It was manufactured by Mr. Vasey. In order that the members of the party can put in all their time in pleasure and enjoyment, a cook will accompany the party to prepare the meals and do the work about camp.

All of the party except Mr. Vasey will remain at the camp during the time it is in existence. Mr. Vasey will remain until the camp is made and put in good order, after which he will return to West Berkeley, where his business demands his attention. He will, however, hie himself to the camp every Saturday evening and remain over Sunday, during which time he expects to be a veritable knight of the forest.

A horse and buggy will be kept at the camp so that the ladies of the party will be able to take in the surrounding country without being fatigued by long walks.

The GAZETTE has been promised a description of the camp as soon as it is fairly laid out, and we know that it will be interesting reading to those who compose Camp West Berkeley.

HE ELOPED.

With Pretty Mary Winslow

Whose Parents Reside at West Oakland.

H. F. Mannion. Not Unknown in Berkeley

Is the Individual Who Deserted His Wife—County Clerk Jordan on a Woman's Age.

Deserted His Wife.

H. F. Manion is a young man who is rather sporty. He has for a long time been running a drug store on Market and Seventh street Oakland.

A few months ago he was the Democratic candidate for Supervisor of this district. He made quite a fight in Berkeley promising many people that if elected he would reside here. He didn't get elected and consequently Berkeley failed to get him as one of her citizens.

A short time ago he converted his drugstore into cash and since that time he has been devoting his time and attention to Miss Mary Winslow of West Oakland.

On the 20th of last month he went to San Francisco accompanied by Miss Winslow and while there he had a mock marriage performed between himself and Miss Winslow. The next day the girl returned to her home and announced that she had been married to Mannion the night before and that they were going to the country on their wedding trip.

Mr. Winslow mistrusted that all was not right so he visited the city and investigated the marriage and found that it was a bogus one. He then learned also that Mannion was a married man, and that his wife was living in Oakland.

He was not long in finding her and upon a comparison of notes it was found that he had eloped with Miss Winslow. He dropped no hints as to where he was going and the whereabouts of the man and woman are not known.

Mr. Winslow will probably make it very interesting for Mannion if he happens to run across him.

The Joke on Jordan.

County Clerk Jordan acknowledged that the joke was on him yesterday. A couple approached him and asked for a license. Mr. Jordan looked at the woman, and thinking she was quite young inquired if she was seventeen.

"Why, the license is not for me," she laughed out, "it is for my daughter."

"Great Scott!" ejaculated Jordan.

"And how old is she?"

"She is seventeen," replied the women.

Mr. Jordan gasped again: "You certainly carry your age well."

And then to make sure he prepared an affidavit in red ink across the stub of the certificate and asked the woman to sign it. It recited that the signer's name was May I. Graf, residing at 223 Post street, San Francisco, that her daughter, Madeline Agnes Graf, was seventeen years old and that she agreed to her marriage with Carl W. Hamilton.

Mrs. Graf was perfectly willing and so the red ink affair was duly attested. Then Mrs. Graf told Mr. Jordan that she was married when she was thirteen and that she had a daughter even older than seventeen.

Clerk Jordan has not yet recovered.

Reception and Banquet.

A grand reception and banquet will be tendered the victorious University of California when they return. The matter is in the hands of a committee composed of Wm. Nat. Friend, president of the Associated Students of the U. C.; A. F. Morrison, president of the Alumni Association, and E. M. Wolf, secretary of the Alumni Association.

Mr. Wolf is at present in Sacramento, trying to arrange for the alumni of that city to give them a reception as they pass through there homeward bound.

The details of the reception to be given when they arrive here have not been definitely decided upon, but it is certain that they will be met at the depot by all the students and alumni who have not journeyed into the country for a vacation. The banquet very likely will be given in San Francisco the day after they arrive. Col Geo. C. Edwards has suggested that the banquet take place at some location where it will be possible to have spectators, but it is not known as yet whether the suggestion will be carried out or not.

The team will probably arrive on the 27th of June.

Arrested as a Drunk.

A considerable portion of the session of the Oakland police court was taken up yesterday by the hearing of evidence as to whether or not John Sheehan was drunk when arrested by Special Watchman Wallace of the railway company, who, until he got mixed in the affair, held the title also of a deputy sheriff. From the evidence it appeared that Sheehan had been drinking in a saloon on Broadway between Sixth and Seventh, when Wallace also happened in. The two parties got into a dispute which ended by Wallace placing Sheehan under arrest for drunkenness. After hearing the evidence Judge Wood found him guilty as charged and he will be sentenced tomorrow.

As a result of his part in the affair Watchman Wallace has lost his star, Sheriff White having revoked his appointment as a deputy sheriff. Wallace has been watchman down in the railroad yards for the company for some time and has been very vigilant in the interests of his employers. During last winter, for some time he was accustomed to round-up ten or a dozen tramps every day and send them to the city prison to be prosecuted for sleeping in the box cars of the company. As a result of his conduct, Wallace has made many enemies.

Business Offices.

The GAZETTE has now a branch office in the office of W. E. Dickieson on University avenue, next to the corner of Fifth street, where persons having business with the paper in the way of advertising or subscription, or in fact business of any kind, can be accommodated. The business office in Berkeley will be opened in a few days, due notice of which will be given at the time. We shall also have places in Lorin and North Berkeley where our patrons can leave advertisements or subscriptions or orders for printing of any description.

Only one arrest was made today and that was an aggravated case of vagrancy.

Another schooner loaded with lumber for the Berkeley market arrived this morning.

When the whistle blows at noon each day it is very agreeable to see the large number of people of both sexes that emerge from the different factories and mills, on their way to lunch.

FILLIBUSTERING.

President Cleveland has issued a proclamation calling upon all citizens of the United States to refrain from taking any part in the revolution now going on in the island of Cuba. Spain and the United States are at peace and consequently this government is bound to observe the neutrality laws and the conditions of the treaties between the two governments. The revolutionists, no matter how just their cause is, have not waged honorable warfare such as would entitle them to be recognized as belligerents. They have been carrying on guerilla warfare. The leaders, however, have held out great inducements to filibusters in the United States to furnish arms and ammunition, and men to fight the soldiers of Spain allowing them in return for this all the plunder they can carry off. Several parties have fitted out and already many have landed in Cuba. These same filibusters, in case they should get into trouble, would call loudly upon the streets the fact that they are citizens of this country and demand protection. A close watch will be maintained now for more people who are liable to flit over to Cuba, and if they are caught they will be severely punished.

THE SILVER CONVENTION.

The silver convention that is being held in Memphis is one of the most harmonious conventions that has ever been held in the South, and the great interest that is being taken in it is a sure indication that the silver question is one that the masses of the people are favorably impressed with, and that it is an issue. The convention is being handled by veteran political leaders but it is not allowed to be used for partisan purposes. The resolutions passed all ring out loudly for free silver and the applause that greeted them after they were read showed conclusively that the great mass of the people who live south of the Maxon, and Dixon line want free silver, and also that they think the country in general would be a great deal more prosperous if silver were to be coined in large quantities and put into circulation. It will open up large industries all over the country and will be the means of putting thousands of men to work. The cities are now overcrowded with men who have come in from the mountains and deserts where they were employed before silver was demonetized. All these men would return to the mines and their labor would support thousands who are now penniless.

The investigation into the loss of the Colima still goes on and from all of the statements that have been made thus far, the company is very much to blame, in fact testimony enough has been given to have some of the officers of the company tried on a criminal charge. There can be no doubt as to the fact that the Colima was top heavy and that she was blown up by the explosion of dynamite which had been stored in her hold. The fact has also been elicited that although the Colima was plunging in the waves for twelve or fourteen hours there was nothing done towards saving the lives of the passengers in case the vessel was to sink. The treatment of the passengers who were picked up by the San Juan was outrageous, as is also the conduct of the physician who was incapable of attending to his duties owing to the amount of liquor that he drank. The investigation will probably be concluded in a day or two.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT of the Board of Police Commissioners of New York is causing a lively shaking up among the police officers of that city. He is not known to the police and consequently his task is quite easy. He goes out every night to see what the police do while on their beats, and he has found that a great deal of rottenness exists among the members of the force. He finds that the same squads and same officers have been upon the one beat for many years and that is how they secure and maintain political influence. He now proposes to change their beats and also to change the captains and lieutenants from the squads they have commanded to other squads, and these changes will be made regularly every six months.

PRESIDENT COLMAN of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners presented a report to the Board recently requesting that a tax be placed upon all Oregon wheat that was landed in San Francisco. He desired that California growers should have the advantage. The attorney of the Board knocked out his pet scheme yesterday, by stating that it would be illegal to tax the wheat that may come here from other States.

EVERY little while some man commits suicide and leaves a wife and children alone to battle with the world. He gives as his excuse for killing himself that he cannot get work and hence he will take himself out of the world. Such men are arrant cowards. If it is hard for the man to get work how much harder it must be for the woman, who knows nothing about the world and who is also handicapped with the care of several helpless children.

INFORMATION has been received that Father Nenfield, the priest for whose relief from captivity in Soudan, J. J. Coyle of Pamona has been endeavoring to get up a release expedition, is dead. It is many years since the priest was pressed into captivity by the Madhists with Father Lupton, who is also dead. The rest of the party were beheaded.

THE granddaughter of Francis Scott Key, who was discharged from the Pension office at Washington, is to be reinstated. It is said that she is an expert at her work and that the only reason given for her discharge was that she was too old.

RUSSELL SAGE of New York, who, although a millionaire, many times, begrudges himself a new suit of clothes or a clean shirt, was hauled over the coals very roughly by Lawyer Choate of New York yesterday.

THE physicians in attendance upon Marcus D. Boruck, the veteran journalist and politician, now hold out a little hope and say that there is a chance for his recovery.

The fence about the new match factory at West Berkeley is completed. It will now be whitewashed.

Are We Making Progress Toward Equality of Opportunity?

Taking the whole number of persons engaged in all remunerative or gainful occupations, I find that in 1860 such persons constituted 36.19 per cent of the whole population. In 1870 this percentage had increased to 32.43, in 1880 to 34.68, while in 1890 it was 36.31, an increase of more than 10 per cent, relatively, in one generation, the period from 1860 to 1890. This, it should be borne in mind, is the percentage of the total number of persons engaged in gainful occupations of the total population. If we examine now the percentage which this total number of persons engaged in all gainful occupations is of the persons 10 years of age and over, which is the truer comparison, we find that the increase has been as regular, but a little greater, for in 1860 it was 36.72 and in 1890 47.95, an increase of over 11 per cent, relatively, in the 30 years named. This fact alone, it seems to me, answers conclusively and definitely the question we are considering. If the total number of persons engaged in gainful occupations stood still relative to the population, the argument would not be so clearly carried, but with a constant and persistent increase in the relative proportions of this class of people to the whole number of population, and to the whole number 10 years of age and over, there can be no other answer than an affirmative one.

These figures prove conclusively that we are not only making real progress toward a greater opportunity, but toward a greater equality of opportunity in social and industrial life, and they completely kill all arguments made to prove that machinery, the influence of invention, displaces labor, so far as society as a whole is concerned. It would be absurd to argue for a single moment that the introduction of machinery has not in many instances displaced individuals and reduced them not only to relative poverty but to pauperism. The answer cannot well be made to the individual, but the facts cited prove that so far as the whole body of the people is concerned there is no such displacement, and a study of the expansive influence of machinery and invention by the statistical method further proves the value of the argument. The vast number of new openings, never before known, resulting from inventions, offers the best proof in this direction, and it offers, too, proof that one line of opportunity will be abandoned when another of a more profitable nature opens.—Carroll D. Wright in Forum.

LONG ISLAND LOSING ITS TAIL.

Inroads of the Sea Causing Alarm to Property Owners at Orient Point.

Long Island, which looks on the map like a big fish about to swallow New York city, is apparently being slowly swallowed by the ocean. Portions of its shores have disappeared beneath the waves, and now the northern fork of its huge tail is vanishing. About two miles of Orient point, that formed a sandy beach two years ago, is now under 15 feet of water. The lighthouse on the point was six rods from the sea a few years ago. It has since been toppled over by the sea, and only a small part of the surrounding beach is visible.

The bluffs on both the sound and the bay side of Orient point have been sinking at the rate of about 10 or 12 feet a year. The same state of affairs is true of Montauk point, but there the bluffs jut up so abruptly and so high above the sea that the rising of the water is not so noticeable. A rise of a foot or two on the low shores near Peconic bay will submerge acres of land. Much of the threatened land on Orient point forms fertile farms, and the steady advance of the shore line is causing no small concern to the owners. The water has in several places found its way across a low spot on the point from the sound to the bay. The result will be to ultimately divide the peninsula into a series of small islands, similar to Plum, Little Gull and Great Gull islands, all of which were doubtless once a part of the mainland and were cut off by the rise of the sea. The village of Orient is situated in a particularly narrow and low portion of the peninsula, and the next serious inroad of the ocean will probably occur there. In that case 2,000 acres of land and a village of 1,000 people will have to be abandoned.—New York Sun.

From Every Climate.

Twenty-nine nationalities are represented in a New York public grammar school. There are in the primary and grammar departments of this school 1,800 children, and at the last census there were represented among them Hebrews, Italians, Germans, Irish, Greeks, Russians, Poles, French, Scotch, English, Welsh, Swiss, Chinese, Sillesiads, Assyrians, Tunisians (North Africa), Javanese, Kongo West Indians, Cubans, Norwegians, Swedes, Austrians, Hungarians, Herzegovinians, Wallachians, Moldavians, Egyptians, Danes and Armenians. Not over 10 per cent of these children speak English in their homes, the proportion in the primary being under and that in the grammar department over this estimate.

Sunlight.

Seek the sunlight is the advice of all present day hygienists. Patients on the sunny side of the hospital ward recover soonest. The person who always walks on the sunny side of the street outlives his shade seeking brother by ten years. Sleep in rooms where the sun has shed its rays all day. Bask in the sun all you can, and your druggist's and doctor's notes will go to protest.—New York Times.

The Blackstone river, in Rhode Island, was named in honor of Rev. William Blackstone, an Episcopal clergyman and early settler. The Indians called it Paw-tucket, "the forks."

Handkerchiefs first came into notice in England during the reign of Elizabeth.

EATING AND EATERS.

IT IS NOT GOOD FORM TO DO MORE THAN TASTE AND SIP.

If Invited to a Smart Dinner, Dine Before You Go—How Dinners and Banquets of Fabulous Cost Are Got Up and Served by Caterers.

An American author and musician told a queer little story the other day that ran like this:

"Went to the opera; sat in a box with two ladies and three men; social leaders; very swell; felt out of place; heard nothing but talk and chatter; missed all the singing and music; after the opera, supper at the Waldorf; expected that, of course; went prepared—very hungry; all the dainties of the season on the table, but nobody ate; wine in abundance, all drinking; more talk and gossip; wouldn't eat alone, so starved; not polite to eat nowadays, I'm told; proper to mince along, taste a morsel and talk; don't like it; no more fashionable suppers for me!"

Another man, an habitual diner out, remarked:

"I invariably eat my dinner at home before going out to dine. Nobody thinks of eating at a public dinner nowadays. It is the height of ill breeding! At private dinners with ladies he who eats is voted a bore. He must sip and taste and talk; that's all that is expected of him. If I didn't eat at home I'd starve to death."

Perhaps something in recent years has altered the belief that the nearest way to a man's heart is down his throat. Hosts used to feed their guests to put them in good humor, to make their visits agreeable. Everybody at the table ate and drank and all went merrily.

Better dinners than those provided today the world never saw, but they are not eaten. New York dinners are superior in many respects to those of any other city in the world. The people have money and are willing to pay for the best the market affords, and there is no doubt that the New York market is unsurpassed. There are more refinements, too, at an American entertainment than elsewhere, more variety. Still it is well to dine at your own table before going to the house of a fashionable friend. At the latter you are expected to entertain, not to partake of what is set before you. Leave that to the servants or to the caterer. Rich folk used to have their own servants prepare the dinner when guests were expected, but nowadays everything is left to the caterer. It is so much less trouble, you know. Why worry for days arranging a dinner for a dozen or two of one's friends when it can be better done by the caterer? We have plenty of caterers. Some have grown rich and proud on the feasts and banquets given by the fashionable set.

When a millionaire wants to give a dinner he sends for his favorite, tells him the number of guests expected, advances a few ideas on the general style of the entertainment, names the day and hour, and says, "I leave everything to you." The menu is submitted, and, if satisfactory, both as to price and dishes, the preparation goes on.

The entire dinner is prepared at the establishment of the caterer, after which, on the day appointed, it is carefully packed in hamper and boxes and conveyed to the house where it is to be eaten. Most private houses are fitted with excellent ranges, and on them the caterer's chefs do the cooking. Positively nothing is left to the home cook.

The caterer takes entire charge of the kitchen. He could not be responsible for the dinner otherwise. The dining room also is turned over to him, for the dinner itself is scarcely more important than the arrangement of the table or tables.

Certain unwritten rules are followed in this respect. When there are less than 20 persons they are usually seated at one large table, rectangular or round; but when that number is exceeded it is the custom to use small tables, as they can be better served. Six persons to a table is the rule. The expansion of society in New York in the last 12 years has been very great, and the size of the private dinner has increased enormously. It used to be considered a big thing to have 10 or 12 guests, but now it is common enough to have from 30 to 80. Where receptions a few years ago numbered from 800 to 400 guests, they now number from 600 to 1,000.

The cost of a dinner depends on the wines and flowers. An excellent dinner can be served for, say, 20 persons at $10 a plate, the flowers will cost about $15 and the wines from $4 to $15 a head. At Mrs. Astor's famous ball, in the winter of 1889-90, the finest entertainment she ever gave, the wines on the supper table were very select. Her Steinberger Cabinet cost $15 a bottle.

The dinner to Charles O'Connor was one of the finest ever given in this city. It was managed by Sam Ward and cost over $50 a plate. The menus alone cost $6 apiece. The decorations were most elaborate, the tables being literally covered with rare flowers. The wines were the costliest that could be had. Some of Sam Ward's priceless Madeira was handed around. The guests numbered 50.

The dinner to President Andrew Johnson on the occasion of his visit to New York, in 1866, cost $100 a plate. Leland Stanford's dinner to Mrs. Grant, about five years ago, caused a great deal of talk all over the country. It was believed that the 18 guests ate from plates of gold and silver; that the tablecloth was edged with point duoble lace; that under each wineglass there was a napkin of the same costly fabric, and under each finger bowl a Japanese mat that cost $50, and that the terrapin was served in individual silver tureens.—New York Press.

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that the State Poll Tax of Two Dollars for the year 1895 is now due and payable at my office, Room 1, Court House, or to a deputy assessor.

Sec. 3839 of the Political Code reads as follows:

Every male inhabitant of the State, over twenty-one and under 60 years of age, except paupers, insane persons and Indians, not taxed, must annually pay a poll tax of two dollars, provided the same be paid between the first Monday in March and the first Monday in July, then it shall be three dollars.

Sec. 3846 of the Political Code makes it the duty of the Assessor to "demand Poll Tax of every person liable therefor, and on the neglect or refusal of such persons to pay, he must collect by seizure and sale of any personal property owned by such person."

Under sections 429 to 434 every person who refuses to give his own name or the name of any person in his employ, or who in any manner obstructs the Assessor or any of his deputies in the collection of the State Poll Tax, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to a fine of $500 or imprisonment in the County Jail, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Only those persons under twenty-one of over sixty years of age are exempt. Poll Tax must be paid on demand.

IT WAS THE IRONY OF FATE.

The Clerk's Loud Voice Made Trouble in the Lambkin Family.

"I don't see why we can't go to the opera like other people," pouted Mrs. Lambkin, as she and her spouse were walking home together. "We could, I'm sure, if you didn't look upon Wagner as a mortal enemy."

"My only objection to him is the fact that he sends you to sleep and then won't let you stay there," replied Mr. Lambkin. Then, basely anxious to change the subject, he remarked, "I do believe that is Mrs. Fitzjones in another new gown."

"No doubt. Her husband in so generous to her. Why, she tells me that they were at the opera last evening and expect to go again tomorrow."

"Indeed. Ah, by the way, didn't you tell me that you thought Dick Norooks and Miss Effie had quarreled?"

"Very likely. I notice that Dick is particularly touchy whenever grand opera is in town."

"Ah, indeed. By the way, how should you like to call at your mother's this evening?"

"Very much. If anybody was likely to be at home. But of course they will all go to the opera."

"Um—ah! I've just remembered that this is church evening. Suppose we go. We haven't been to evening church since we were first married."

"Impossible, George. I should be ashamed to have any one know that I was well enough to be out after night and not at the opera. People would be sure to say that you are stingy, and I would rather die than cause such remarks."

"Fact is, Endora, I'm as anxious as you are to go to the opera, but money is too tight. I had to make a payment to-day and I doubt if I have a dollar in my pocket. Never mind, we can have a nice long evening at home alone, can't we?"

"Humph! We are sure to be alone, for every living soul we know will be at the opera."

"All the better, my dear. Just step in here with me a moment, will you? I have no cigars, and I don't want to have to go out for anything tonight. You see, I don't keep many cigars on hand now that money is so scarce."

They went into the store, and Mr. Lambkin selected his cigars, while his wife stood by. He felt anxiously in his pockets for small change, and finding none took a bill out of his notebook, and glancing warily at Mrs. Lambkin handed it, all crumpled up, to the clerk. After all that it did seem the irony of fate which made that individual call out in stentorian tones to the cashier, "Twenty-five from 20, please!"

And Mrs. Lambkin was still talking about it when they reached home.—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE NEW WOMAN'S WAY.

How She Will Propose to the Innocent Young Male Creature.

The room was in confusion. That is the way the books say it. An ordinary man with good eyes would have said confusion was in the room.

"At last!"

Her hands trembled as she attempted to fix her tie. Thirteen collars have been ruined. She took a photograph from a drawer. It was the sweet, innocent face of a young man. "Ah, little George! I can no longer deceive myself. I love you. The strong is about to become the weak. How far we women will go for the bright eyes of a silly man! But enough! I shall ask you to be mine this night, come what may."

"Mr. Nicely will be down in a moment. Pray be seated."

But her heart beat too wildly. She paced the floor. "The dear, dear, little boy! How I love him!"

The curtains parted, and the world's greatest treasure—a true hearted, innocent young man—entered.

(An ordinary, everyday conversation for a few minutes. She attempts to take the hand of George, who blushes and looks startled.)

"I must explain myself! Hear me! I can no longer act this hateful part! I must speak! I love you with the great love of a brave woman. I—"

"But this is so!"

"It is. But will you be my husband?"

There was a great gulf of pity in the young man's gentle eyes. But he spoke: "No. But I will be a brother to you."—Boston Post.

Fixing a Watch.

"I dropped my watch today, and it has been gaining ten minutes an hour," said a man, at the same time handing the watch to a jeweler. The jeweler stuck a glass in his eye, looked into the interior of the watch, poked something with a small instrument, set the watch by a regulator, and handing it back, said, "It's all right now, and I've set it by the correct time." "How much?" said the customer, relieved. "Nothing," was the answer. "But I can't let you work for me without pay." "We never charge any one for such a service; why should we charge you? The hairspring was doubled, and that made the watch run fast. A single touch set it right."—New York Sun.

Neighborly Curiosity.

Mrs. Meekton was standing on the front doorstep when her husband came home.

"Henry," she said in a loud tone, "there's your income tax blank. You'd better fill it out right away."

"Great Scott, Maria!" he exclaimed, "what do I want with an income tax blank?"

"Don't talk so loud," was the admonition in a subdued but stern key. "It's a summons to serve on the jury. The next door neighbors on both sides of us have been sitting behind the closed window blinds waiting for you to come home so they could find out what the officer was here for."—Washington Star.
